A Religious Author's Statement
Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." Red Cross Drug Co. and O. G. Schaefer.

Good Cough Medicine for Children and Grown Folks, Too.

"We could hardly do without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Mrs. Flora Despain of Boyd, Ky. "I found it to be so good for the croup and have used it for years. I can heartily recommend it for coughs, colds and croup in children and grown folks, too." The above shows the implicit confidence that many mothers place in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a confidence based on many years' experience in the use of it. No one need hesitate to use this remedy for it contains no chloroform, opium or other narcotics and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. For sale by all dealers.

GO TO THE RESCUE
Don't Wait till It's Too Late—Follow the Example of an East Las Vegas Citizen

Rescue the aching back. If it keeps on aching, trouble comes. Backache is kidney ache. If you neglect the kidneys' warning, Look out for urinary trouble—diabetes.

This East Las Vegas citizen will show you how to go to the rescue. Mrs. Sanford North, 915 Jackson ave., East Las Vegas, N. Mex., says: "In view of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the Center Block Pharmacy, and the good results that followed their use in my home, I know that they are a sterling backache and kidney remedy. The public statement I gave two and a half years ago touching on the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills was correct in every particular and I have taken pleasure in recommending this remedy ever since then when an opportunity has been presented."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

POKER GIVES SADNESS AT PRICE OF WISDOM

(New York Herald.)

They were swapping poker stories of the good old days in California—the California before the fire and earthquake laid its great metropolis in ashes and robbed it forever of its distinction, according to Robert Louis Stevenson, of being the most cosmopolitan city in the world. They were seated in the vestibule of the Hotel Astor talking, one a lawyer from the Golden State, another a cattleman from Nevada and the third a nondescript, but still a gentleman, who appeared to have seen better days.

"Talk about poker as it used to be played on the Pacific coast when Lucky Baldwin was in his prime," remarked the lawyer, as he pulled at a long, black cigar. "You don't see the game any more because it has dwindled down to a two-bit limit, and I hold that a limit game is just like shaking dice. The luckiest man wins, and science is no element in the proceedings, as it was in the old days when the limit was the sky and the desire of the players to call any bet that might be made."

"Sure, that's right," mused the nondescript gentleman as he rolled a cigarette and lighted it. "Poker has been shamefully debased by pokers who demand a limit. It's no longer a test of nerves, grit or judgment, based upon a scientific observation of men and things, but merely a succession of show downs and the best hand wins."

The cattleman, laughed quietly. "I ain't quite agreein' with you chaps," he remarked, as he took a handful of fine-cut and stowed it away between teeth and cheek. "I made the biggest killin' in my experience at a limit game once."

"What was the limit?" inquired the lawyer.

"Just an ordinary thousand," "By Bacchus!" ejaculated the nondescript. "That's worse than table stakes. Where did you play a game like that?"

"At Virginia City, in the early Comstock days," was the reply. "I was a young fellow then and struck a claim which netted me $60,000 in a month. There was some right smart gambling goin' on in town and I got into it up to my neck. I lost all but $2,000 and was about to skip the camp when I went to Mullane's saloon and began to watch a table-stake game then in progress."

"Any money on the table?" asked the nondescript eagerly.

"Fully $50,000, I reckon," was the reply. "There was four chaps playin', and one of 'em was a young chap from Baltimore who represented a syndicate or somethin'. He was well-nigh broke and plumbin'. The others were sports all right, but while they were gamblers they was straight players and never took advantage. The young fellow was about to quit the game when I felt a hunch and sat down at the same time putting down my solitary $2,000, resolved if I lost half of it I would break away for good."

"Well," resumed the cattleman, "we had played a pot or two and I pulled in fifty or so on aces up. When the young fellow pulls out five $1,000 bills and proposes, inasmuch as he was in hard luck, to make it a $1,000 limit. There was some discussion, but we finally agreed to gratify the young sport and the limit is fixed at $1,000. The ante was made $50, so that each pot was $250 before a card was drawn. The young chap, who was out about $10,000 or so, drew his chair close to the table and began to kneel down to business in good shape. Every time some one opened a pot for $250, the size of it, he plunked in a thousand-dollar bill on a raise. He got a couple of us with openers only and didn't get a call, though I suspected he was a drivin' of us out desperate like, and while I felt sorry for him in a way, I made up my mind to teach him a lesson if it came my way to do it without costin' me more than I could afford."

"Sure," drawled the nondescript, "that was wise."

"There came a pot which was opened by one of the sports for the usual amount," resumed the cattleman, "and the other fellow stays. The young chap looks at his hand and gives a start, then puts in $1,250. I was dealin' and hadn't looked at my keards when the raise was made. I skins down my hand and finds three tens, a deuce and ace. I merely calls his raise, leaving me with $2,000 in case it was raised ag'in. Well, it was. The opener raised the pot the limit and the other stayed. The young chap looked at his keards ag'in and then raised back, putting in $2,000 more. The pot was $8,250 now, and I had $1,250 in it. I figured that my three tens were good, and I calls and I ask what keards was wanted. The opener stands pat, the second draws two, the young chap one and I two."

"You was fo'ced to draw two when the opener stands pat," remarked the nondescript. "That's the invariable rule, I believe."

"I don't play poker accordin' to rules," answered the cattleman, dryly. "I was a-fishin' for the case 10, and if it came my way I was sure of the pot. I didn't look at my draw, 'cause I was anxious to see what the other chaps would do. The opener bets $1,000 and as I was a-playin' a showdown, having all my cash in the pot, it was put on the side. The pot before that bet amounted to $13,250, and unless I bettered my hand I knew it was the tall timbers for me. The second sport, who drew two keards, look at his hand and throws it into the discard. The young chap looks at his hand and raises the opener the limit. It was called, and by that time I had skinned down my hand and finds the case 10 a-millin' I take in the center pot and the young chap wins the side-bets, amountin' to $4,000. He drew the case ace and makes a ace full against the opener's queen full."

"That was lucky for the young chap," remarked the lawyer.

"Naw!" answered the cattleman. "It was the worst thing for him that could have happened. He got to plumbin' ag'in my aces up and threes. To make a long story short, I won $26,000 that night, and if it had been table stakes I would have gone broke, as on two occasions I had a king full beaten, and but for the limit my hull pile would have gone to the center of the table. Sometimes a limit game has its advantages, as I have pointed out."

The lawyer remarked that he had a similar experience once in a game in San Francisco. "But," he added, "I'm goin' to tell you how an earthquake once cost me $5,000, if you care to listen."

"Sure," said the cattleman, taking another chew of fin-cut.

"This was in a no-limit game at the Pacific Union club," went on the lawyer. "I had a trifle more than $5,000 on the table and was about $3,000 loser. There were five players, a well-known superior judge, a fellow attorney, a millionaire and a wealthy merchant. Without going into details I will say that I opened a jackpot with three fives just five minutes past 5 o'clock on the fifth day of May, which is the fifth month of the year."

"Case of five all around," laughed the nondescript. "And five players, too."

"Well," resumed the lawyer, without heeding the interruption, "it seemed as if every player in the game was well heeled. The judge, who sat next to me, stood pat after I had drawn one card to my three fives and a four of spades. The attorney drew one, the millionaire two and the merchant one. I had opened the pot for $20 and merely chipped without looking at my hand when I saw the judge stood pat."

"Nothin' else to do," remarked the cattleman.

"The judge raised my chip $50 and the attorney raised it $200. The millionaire threw his hand into the discard and the merchant after skinning down his hand merely called. Then I took a look at my draw and was amazed to find the fourth five snuggling up against the four of spades. I saw the judge's bet and the raise and promptly raised both $500. The judge came back with a raise of $1,000, the

HANDS CRACKED RAW AND SCALY

Itched and Burned Terribly—Arms Affected, Too—Could Not Move Thumbs Without Flesh Cracking—Sleep and Work Often Impossible—Was Fairly Worn Out.

CUTICURA SOON CURED HIS FEARFUL ECZEMA

"About a year ago an itching humor began to appear around the back of my hand. It started in to spread, and pretty soon it covered both my hands and got up over my wrists and even up to the elbows. The itching and burning were terrible. My hands got all scaly and when I scratched, as I was doing a good part of the time, the surface would be covered with blisters and then get raw. The eczema got so bad in around the pit of my thumbs that I could not move the thumbs without deep cracks appearing. I went to my doctor, but his medicine could only stop the itching and did not seem to heal my hands up at all. At night I suffered so fearfully that I could not sleep, often lying awake until well toward morning, then waking up still tired. I am a chef and steward by trade and I had to give up my place, as my hands were so terrible to look at that they did not like to have me around about the food. I could not bear to touch them with water, but when I positively had to get my hands clean I would rub them with oil."

"This sort of business went on for three months and I kept trying zinc and tar ointments and such remedies with no particular benefit. I did not know what to do, for I was fairly worn out. For a long time several friends kept asking me why I didn't use Cuticura and at last I thought I would. First I got the Cuticura Soap, then Cuticura Ointment and at last Cuticura Resolvent. I put the Cuticura Ointment on at night, covering my hands with light cotton gloves. In the morning the inside of the gloves would be lined with scales, sometimes half as long as your finger, leaving nice healed places where the scales had been. In a month I was cured and have kept so now for nine months. My hands and arms are perfectly clear of all traces of eczema and I think I am well rid of it. Walter H. Cox, 16 Somerset St., Boston, Mass., Sept. 25, 1909."

Poor Light, Bad Air, Crowded Rooms Contribute To Spread of Disease.

At a meeting in Washington, attended by leading educators and representatives of workmen, the sentiment was unanimous that the bad air, poor light and crowded rooms in many schools and factories contributed largely to the spread of consumption. Samuel Gompers, as President of the American Federation of Labor, maintained that by causing a reduction in the hours of labor, and securing higher wages, which made it possible to provide better sustenance, the Federation had done much to assist in the great work of stamping out the disease.

While much has been accomplished in the fight against consumption, it is necessary for each individual to take every precaution against contracting the disease. Coughs and colds are a prolific source, and must not be neglected. A simple, inexpensive and effective remedy is made by mixing two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. A teaspoonful, four times a day, will usually break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

This formula is frequently prescribed and is highly recommended by the Leach Chemical Co., of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure.

attorney called and I put in all I had, $2,000 or so."

"It looked good," said the cattleman.

"For the time being, yes," answered the lawyer, ruefully. "You see, the judge was calling my bet with the remark that he was sorry I was out of funds and was boosting it for the attorney's benefit, when the table rocked, the walls began to rock, the chandelier swung viciously, and the building appeared about to collapse. It was an earthquake, the most violent tremor since 1868, and to say we were alarmed would be putting it mildly. I laid down my hand and rushed out of the room to find out the trouble."

"I thought of my hand," said the lawyer, "and I returned to the card-room and found the players dealing cards. The judge was stacking up money in his pile, and then it dawned upon me that in laying down my hand I had forfeited all interest in the pot. I inquired what won the pot and the judge told me he held a king full. He wanted to know how big my full was, and regretted that I had thrown my hand into the discard just as the quake came. I swallowed my anger and went home a sadder, but wiser man."

Forced Into Exile

Wm. Upchurch of Glenn Oak, Okla., was an exile from home. Mountain air, he thought, would cure a frightful lung-racking cough that had defied all remedies for two years. After six months he returned, death dogging his steps. "Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery," he writes, "and after taking six bottles I am as well as ever." It saves thousands yearly from desperate lung diseases. Infalible for coughs and colds, it dispels hoarseness and sore throat. Cures grip, bronchitis, hemorrhages, asthma, croup, whooping cough. 50c and $1.00 trial bottle free, guaranteed by druggists.

A man died of measles the other day and left $25,000,000 to charity. It's a good thing the measles didn't strike him at the usual age.

A Broken Back

That pain in your back caused by lumbago, stiff muscles or a strain is an easy thing to get rid of. Ballard's Snow Liniment cures rheumatism, lumbago, sore and stiff muscles, strains, sprains, cuts, burns, bruises, scalds and all aches and pains. You need a bottle in your house. Sold by Center Block Depot Drug Co.

Wigg—"Henpeckka had everything in his wife's name." Wag—"Yes, he didn't even have a will of his own when he died."

If you desire a clear complexion take Foley's Orino Laxative for constipation and liver trouble as it will stimulate these organs and thoroughly cleanse your system, which is what everyone needs in order to feel well. Red Cross Drug Co. and O. G. Schaefer.

Hoax—"I understand you are going to marry Miss Antique." Joax—"Huh! I'd like to catch myself." Hoax—"Well, you'd better. If you don't catch yourself she will."

Croup Cured and a Child's Life Saved

"It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to that of the thousands who have been benefited by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My child, Andrew, when only three years old, was taken with a severe attack of croup, and thanks to the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy his life was saved and today he is a robust and healthy boy," says Mrs. A. Coy, Jr., of San Antonio, Texas. This remedy has been in use for many years. Thousands of mothers keep it at hand, and it has never been known to fail. For sale by all dealers.

The longer people live in a life the more they deserve to have a taste of real life before they die.

Kills her Foe of 20 Years

"The most merciless enemy I had for 20 years," declares Mrs. James Duncan, of Haynesville, Me., "was dyspepsia. I suffered intensely after eating or drinking and could scarcely sleep. After many remedies had failed and several doctors gave me up, I tried Electric Bitters, which cured me completely. Now I can eat anything. I am 70 years old and am overjoyed to get my health and strength back again." For indigestion, loss of appetite, kidney trouble, lame back, female complaints, it is unequalled. Only 50c at all druggists.

It's awful hard to forgive anybody for being so nice there's nothing about him that needs forgiving.

Consumption Statistics

prove that a neglected cold or cough puts the lungs in so bad a condition that consumption germs find a fertile field for fastening on one. Stop the cough just as soon as it appears with Ballard's Horehound Syrup. Soothes the torn and inflamed tissues and makes you well again. Sold by Center Block Depot Drug Co.
